An Accidental Forever

Theo Pelmus & Kristin Snowbird

August 15 – October 18, 2025

Opening Reception: Sunday, October 5, 3–5 PM

The artists will be joining us for Culture Days! Event details on page 13.

Spouses and creative partners Theo Pelmus and Kristin Snowbird immerse viewers in wondrous explorations of intimacy, land, spirituality, and resilience through their performance and digital artworks. An Accidental Forever encompasses several years of their individual and collaborative production.

Combining new media with cultural traditions, their artworks challenge the distinction between traditional forms and innovation. In their work, the artists reinvigorate pre-Christian dances, languages, clothing, and rituals from Pelmus' Romanian and Snowbird's Ojibwe/Cree heritage through emerging technologies.

An Accidental Forever includes new photographic light boxes that capture moments from their digitally integrated performance work. These luminous images respond to viewers' proximity, extending the ephemeral performance into a lasting, evolving encounter.

Their use of light from shimmering video projections and interactive illuminated photographs signals that, while addressing social harms, their intent is to provide hope and foster healing.

From October 3-5, AGR will host multisensory, interactive performances by the artists, including Niimin Dance Dans and The Language of Flowers.

Silent Gathering: of Grief and Remembrance

Kyuubi Culture (Xiao Han & Qiming Sezava Sun)

November 6, 2025 – January 17, 2026

Opening Reception: Friday November 7, 5 – 7 PM

Grief Parade: TBA

Kyuubi Culture Artist Collective is launching a project, Silent Gathering: of Grief and Remembrance, which invites communities to explore and celebrate connections with ancestral spirits and the natural cycles of life and death through socially engaged art workshops. Artworks created during these workshops will be presented in the Art Gallery of Regina for exhibition in November 2025.

For eons, séance and funerary rites have been widely practiced across cultures, providing closure, connections and comfort for grieving families. Yet, in contemporary Canadian society, these rituals and conversations are often deemphasized, and even avoided.

Through culturally-informed workshops and discussions, Kyuubi Culture aims to create a welcoming space to share knowledge, reflect on loss, and embrace the transformative power of artistic expression.

Silent Gathering: of Grief and Remembrance fosters intercultural dialogue focusing on diverse cultural perspectives on death and creation. Incorporating stories gathered from community members and workers in death-adjacent industries, Kyuubi Culture's exhibition theArt Gallery of Regina will span disciplines such as costume, interpretive dance, photography, and sound.

Silent Gathering: of Grief and Remembrance a crucial role in preserving intangible heritage by weaving together overlooked narratives surrounding death and creation, creating a platform for storytelling that honours various traditions and the universal human experience of loss.

Making It Mini: A Return to Play at 1:6 Scale

September 2 – 30, 2025

Jennifer Berg is a fibre and mixed media artist in Regina, Saskatchewan. More than evoking childhood nostalgia, her exhibition, Making it Mini: A Return to Play at 1:6 Scale, explores unstructured, hands-on, creative, imaginative play—particularly the making of play objects being an essential part of play—as a way to reconnect with joy and to reach the “flow-state” that is highly beneficial to our mental health and wellbeing, for adults and children. All pieces are made by hand using everyday materials including fabric scraps and objects from the recycling bin.

The use of inexpensive or free materials helps to encourage low-risk creative expression and exploration; the pieces themselves are made in play-scale, which allows for further play after the objects are completed.

Quiet Alchemy

September 2 – 30, 2025

Floden explores the quiet power of vessels—both physical and metaphorical—as containers for memory, transformation, and presence. These vessels contain both fragility and resilience, captured in the act of repair. This focus on stillness and quiet arises from the artist’s experience of a traumatic accident that abruptly changed the course of her life. Once a competitive athlete, she was suddenly confined to a slower, contemplative existence during recovery. The still life became a metaphor for this new way of being—an invitation to find meaning and beauty in rest, subtlety, and the impermanence of life. These works are a meditation on endurance, imperfection, and the connections between materiality and spirit.

OPPORTUNITIES -----

ADD YOUR VOICE

FULLY FUND
SK ARTS

Saskatchewan's arts sector is facing ill-informed criticism and unprecedented financial hardship. Recent media coverage has amplified harmful narratives that frame the arts as frivolous and wasteful, undermining the essential role that artists and arts organizations play in our communities. In response, the Saskatchewan Arts Alliance is launching a public letter-writing campaign calling on the Government of Saskatchewan to increase SK Arts' base funding by $6 million.

This is a critical opportunity to show elected officials that artists, arts workers, and arts supporters from across the province care deeply about the future of public arts funding, and it only takes 2 minutes.

Why This Matters

SK Arts has not received a meaningful increase in base funding in over a decade, despite rising costs and growing demand. Without increased investment, Saskatchewan risks losing (and has lost):

- Artistic talent and creative workers;
- Community-led programs, festivals, and exhibitions;
- Equitable access to the arts in rural, northern, and underserved communities.

Organizations funded by SK-Arts generate approximately $92 million in annual economic output, and the broader arts and culture sector contributes over $1 billion to Saskatchewan's GDP. Support for the arts has an impact far beyond culture, supporting jobs, community resilience, and our province's identity.
